  - Proposal for project with forecasting: Making Ireland Weather and Climate
  - Prepared – 10-year strategy 2017-2027 available on Met Éireann website
  - Difference between Climate and Weather: Climate = What you expect, Weather = What you get

- SLIDE 15 – An Era of Change
  - Some changes in Irish climate – 5% increase in rainfall
  - Though weather is variable (i.e. last year’s summer drought was within natural variability), extreme events are becoming more likely
  - Rapidly increasing population both in Ireland and globally could lead to societal vulnerability
  - The nature of weather information is changing

- SLIDE 16 - Extreme weather
  - Flooding, fires (Bray and in the Midlands)
  - Ireland part of MeterAlarm framework (orange/red warnings, etc.)
  - Same system used abroad

- SLIDE 17 - Weather value chain
  - National Meteorological Service:
    - Monitor, analyse and predict Ireland’s weather and climate
    - Provide a range of high quality meteorological and related information
    - Help to ensure the protection and safety of life and property

- Slide 18 – Dissemination and Communication

  - Number of Met Eireann app installations – 5,000 installations versus another popular app

- SLIDE 19 – Perception Interpretation and Uses/Decision making

- SLIDE 20 – Sender Characteristics
  - National meteorological service – on national television
  - Authoritative voice for warnings

- SLIDE 21 - Weather and climate service

- SLIDE 22 - COALESCE 2019: MET ÉREANN - Two parts
  - Part A) Understanding the usage of Weather Forecasts and Warnings
    - Discover where users get their weather information; how they perceive, respond and act on forecasts and warnings
    - Gain better understanding of the public perception and interpretation of probabilistic weather information
• Examine how the usage and interpretation of Met Éireann’s weather services varies amongst users

• SLIDE 23 - COALESCE 2019: MET ÉIREANN - Two parts (cont.)
  o Part B) Understanding the public usage of Climate Services
    • to understand the Climate Service needs of the Irish public
    • to determine how and why users get climate information
    • to understand how user’s perceive, respond and act on climate information
    • to understand their interpretation of climate projection uncertainty
    • to identify current and future climate service needs of the Irish public
  o Understanding public perception of probabilistic weather information using new science and more sophisticated probabilistic projects, to be put up on the Met Éireann website

• Issue arises as some of these terms are defined in a legal framework
• Documenting methodological approaches, tools and learning that could be applied to other situations requiring the development of context sensitive shared terminology and language
• Can see lot of other instances in past experience & reflection where many need to have a shared developed terminology and language, changing the zeitgeist and state perspective, with a longstanding addition to research methodology

  o Budget and timeline
    • Fixed cost of €60,000
    • Commencing end of 2019, with project completion at end of 2020
